

Wednesday Walk/Drive down Bendora Dam Road – 15 October 2014

Given the low temperature and the threat of a shower, we decided early on to do roadside stops and just a short walk at Bendora Dam rather than the longish loop. We had many roadside stops and saw many things - lots in flower. We disturbed many Spotted Pardalotes nesting in holes in the roadside banks where we were looking at many things - orchids in particular (Bunochilus montanus, Pterostylis pedunculata, P. nutans, Petalochilus carneus, Glossodia major - including a white one - and Diuris pardina). There were great displays of the daisy bush, Olearia lirata (big sprays of white flowers) as well as Acacia pravissima, A. dealbata, Indigofera australis (including a number of white flowered plants), Tetradlea bauerifolia, Comesperma volubile (big masses of blue), Pomaderris eriocephala, Stackhousia monogyna, Daviesia mimosoides, D. ulicifolia, Oxylobium ellipticum, Dillwynia phyllicoides and many other things. We were surprised to find what seems to be the rare and endangered Pomaderris costata. We also saw the mystery "Bendora" pomaderris in full flower – it looks like a small version of P. intermedia. We also found some lovely Hibbertia flowering which we have identified as H. serpyllifolia – a new species for us.
