

Wednesday Walk at Stringybark Reserve, Jerrabomberra – 2 September 2009

Stringybark Reserve is to the east of the suburb Jerrabomberra, Queanbeyan NSW, and seems to be continuous with the bushland on Mt Jerrabomberra. It was our first visit and we started from Albizia Place. It is woodland with some stringybarks (Eucalyptus macrorhyncha) and also E. polyanthemos and E. rossii. We followed a path south before heading up to a ridge, following that north. There were some interesting plants that we don't often see – Stypandra glauca, Cryptandra amara var. floribunda, Phyllanthus hirtellus and Einadia hastata. There were good flower displays of Acacia pycnantha, A. dealbata, C. amara var. floribunda, Hovea heterophylla and Dodonaea viscosa ssp. angustissima. We also saw the first of the spring orchids – Cyanicula caerulea. Our walk was cut short by a medical emergency but it is worthy of a future visit.
